CHARISE A. MORGAN BECOMES PRESIDENT OF THE MIAMI-DADE BAR

Jun 28, 2024 News in Photos

'I want the community to see and know the Miami-Dade Bar, and I want the bar to see and know the community'

New Miami-Dade Bar President Charise A. Morgan, center, is pictured with Dominique Calhoun, left, and Wiley Adams at the association's annual gala. "Service is the rent we pay for living on this earth," and it certainly is a privilege to live and work in the Miami legal community," said Morgan, quoting activist and trailblazer Shirley Chisholm, who in 1968 became the first Black woman elected to the United States Congress. "However, it's obviously not perfect. We who labor here owe that service and giving back should be our commitment to making this city, this bar, and this practice better."
